

Jacqueline Southee is the North American Representative for Foundation FSSC 22000, the owner of the globally recognized GFSI benchmarked food safety certification system, FSSC 22000, and the new FSSC 24000 certification for Social Management Systems. Based in Washington DC, Jacqueline works with the public and private sector to build a broader understanding of how accredited FSSC 22000 certification and the ISO management system approach can contribute to global harmonization, forge international compliance and help industry achieve the UN sustainability goals.

A native of the UK Jacqueline is a “seasoned” player with a PhD in Animal Science from the University of Nottingham and a background in international business development.

Jsouthee@fssc.com