

Asli Solmaz-Kaiser is the CEO of iComplai, the early warning system for risks in the food supply chain. Asli has 14 years of experience in the product safety industry and has acted as a member of the German national product safety committee. Prior to this role Asli has been leading the global product development and innovation team of one of the leading testing, inspection and certification companies in Germany. Asli holds a masters degree in business from the University of Mannheim, Germany.