

Jessica Burke- Biography

Jessica is a food safety and certification professional with extensive experience across laboratory services, food manufacturing, and global standard development. She began her career in environmental and food testing before moving into quality assurance and food safety roles within the food manufacturing industry, where she supported organizations in strengthening their food safety systems and achieving GFSI-benchmarked certification.

Jessica has held multiple leadership roles at BRCGS, including Technical Specialist for the Gluten Free Certification Program and the Plant-Based Global Standard, as well as Senior Technical Manager for the Americas region. In these roles, she provided regional technical oversight and contributed to the development, implementation, and adoption of global certification programs.

In her current role as Senior Strategic Account Manager, Jessica is responsible for driving growth across the North American market and supporting collaboration across the BRCGS delivery partner network. She is passionate about advancing food safety culture, consistency in certification, and practical implementation of standards across the global food supply chain.
